

Peter Neesham

I'm a manager at a large Distribution company in Teesside and I joined Kleeneze like most people to earn an extra £50 per week to make up for losing a promotion at work.

I've seen the incentives available in terms of holidays and cars and now I'm working towards achieving those. My long term aim is to build a business of my own so that I can leave a job working for others and work purely for myself.

There are systems in place for everything that we do in Kleeneze, its as simple as following the system to get where you want to be. It's all about being consistent and persistent
The question is, do you know anybody who may be interested in making an extra £50-£100 per week in the spare time they have available?
